S.J. PHILLIPS

19th century diamond coiled snake bangle, c.1880, with foiled pink diamond to the head, of double looped form, the dome-topped flat backed body articulated at hinges to sides and back, inset along the body with three lines of old brilliant cut diamonds graduating to two and single row at the tail, the head featuring a broader cluster centred by the larger old elongated cushion cut foiled pink diamond, a small demantoid garnet to each eye, close cut down collet set and mounted in silver and gold, with a fitted case with stamp for Regner, 368 Rue St Honore, Paris, approximately 45cts of diamonds

Inside length minimum 16.5cm / 6"

Width across top centre (three body sections) 2.5cm / 1"

Foiled pink diamond approximate spread 6.3 x 5.1mm

Weight: 89.5g